

Who by the hand of France, this day hath made
Much worke for teares in many an English mother,
Whose sonnes ly scattered on the bleeding ground,
Many a widdowes husband groling lies,
Coldly embracing the discoloured earth,
And victorie with little losse doth play,
Vpon the dancing banners of the French,
Who are at hand triumphantly displayed
To enter Conquerors, and to proclaim
Arthur of Britaine, Englands King, and yours.

Enter English Herald with Trumpets
E. Har. Reioyce you men of Angiers, ring your bells,
King John, your king and Englands, doth approach,
Commander of this hot malicious day,
Their Armour that march'd hence to silver bright,
Hither returne all gilt with Frenchmens blood,
There stucke no plume in any English Crest,
That is remoued by a staffe of France,
Our colours do returne in those same hands
That did display them when we first marcht forth:

And like a iolly troope of Hunnemen come
Our lustie English, all with purpled hands,
Dide in the dying slaughter of their foes,
Open your gates, and giue the Victors way.
Hubert. Heralds, from off our towres we might behold
From first to last, the on-set and retyre
Of both your Armies, whose equality
By our best eyes cannot be censured:
Blood hath bought blood, and blowes haue answered
Strength matcht with strength, and power confronted power,
Both are alike, and both alike we like:
One must proue greater. While they weigh so euen,
We hold our Towne for neither: yet for both.

Enter the two Kings with their powers at severall doores.

John. France, hast thou yet more blood to cast away?
Say, shall the currant of our right come on,
Whose passage vext with thy impediment,
Shall leave his native channel, and ore-swell with course disturb'd euen thy confining shores, Vnlesse thou let his siluer Water, keepe
A peacefull progresse to the Ocean?

Fra. England thou hast not sau'd one drop of blood
In this hot triall more then we of France,
Rather lost more. And by this hand I sweare
That swaies the earth this Climate ouer-lookes,
Before we will lay downe our iust-borne Armes,
Wee'l put thee downe, gainst whom these Armes wee
Or adde a royall number to the dead: (beare,
Gracing the scroule that tels of this wares losse,
With slaughter coupled to the name of kings.

Bast. Ha Maiesty: how high thy glory towres,
When the rich blood of kings is set on fire:
Oh now doth death line his dead chaps with Steele,
The sword of souldiers are his teeth, his phangs,
And now he feasts, mouing the flesh of men
In vndermin'd differences of kings.
Why stand these royall fronts amazed thus?
Cry haueoke kings, backe to the stained field.
You equall Parents, fierie kindled spirits,
Then let confusion of one part confirm
The others peace: till then, blowes, blood, and death.

John. Whose party do the Townemen yet admit?
Fra. Speake Citizens for England, whose your king?
Hub. The king of England, when we know the king?
Fra. Know him in vs, that heere hold up his right.
John. In vs, that are our owne great Deputie,
And beare possession of our Person heere,
Lord of our presence Angiers, and of you,
Fra. A greater powre then we denies all this,
And till it be vndoubted, we do Locke
Our former scruple in our strong barr'd gates:
Kings of our feare, vntill our feares resolu'd
Be by some certaine king, purg'd and depos'd.
Bast. By heauen, these scroyles of Angiers flout you
And stand securely on their battlements,
As in a Theater, whence they gaze and point
At your industrious Scenes and acts of death:
Your Royall presences be rul'd by mee,
Do like the Mutines of Ierusalem,
Be friends a-while, and both conioyntly bend
Your sharpest Deeds of malice on this Towne.
By East and West let France and England moue,
Their battering Canon charg'd to the mouths,
Till their foule-fearing clamours haue brauld downe
The flintie ribbes of this contemptuous Citie,
I'll play incessantly vpon these Iades,
Euen till vnenced desolation
Leaue them as naked as the vulgar ayre:
That done, disseuer your vnited strengths,
And part your mingled colours once againe,
Turne face to face, and bloody point to point:
Then in a moment Fortune shall cull forth
Out of one side her happy Minion,
To whom in fauour she shall giue the day,
And kisse him with a glorious victory:
How like you this wilde counsell mighty States,
Smackes it not something of the policie?

John. Now by the sky that hangs about our heads,
I like it well: France, shall we knit our powres,
And lay this Angiers euen with the ground,
Then after fight who shall be king of it?

Bast. And if thou hast the mettle of a king,
Being wrong'd as we are by this peeuish Towne:
Turne thou the mouth of thy Artillerie,
As we will ours, against these sawcie walles,
And when that we haue dash'd them to the ground,
Why then desie each other, and pell-melly
Make worke vpon our selues, for heauen or hell.

Fra. Let it be so: say, where will you assault?

John. We from the West will send destruction
Into this Citie bosome.

Aust. I from the North.

Fra. Our Thunder from the South,
Shall raine their drift of bullets on this Towne.

Bast. O prudent discipline! From North to South:
Austria and France shoor in each others mouth,
He stirre them to it: Come, away, away.

Hub. Heare vs great kings, vouchsafe awhile to stay
And I shall shew you peace, and faire-fac'd league:
Win you this Citie without stroke, or wound,
Rescue those breathing liues to dye in beds,
That heere come sacrifices for the field,
Perfeuer not, but heare me mighty kings.

John. Speake on with fauour, we are bent to heare.

Hub. That daughter there of Spaine, the Lady Blanch
Is neere to England, looke vpon the yeeres
Of Lewis the Dolphin, and that lovely maid,
If lustie loue should go in quest of beautie,

Where

Where should he finde it fairer, then in Blanch:
Zealous loue should go in search of vertue,
Where should he finde it purer, then in Blanch?

Whose ambitious, sought a match of birth,
Whose veins bound richer blood then Lady Blanch?
Such as she is, in beautie, vertue, birth,
Is the yong Dolphin euery way compleat,
If not compleat of, say he is not thee,
And she againe wants nothing, to name want,
I want it better, that she is not thee:
He is the halfe part of a blessed man,
Left to be finished by such as thee,
And she a faire diuined excellence,
Whose fulnesse of perfection lyes in him.

O two such siluer currents when they ioine
Do glorifie the banks that bound them in:
And two such shores, to two such streames made one,
Two such controlling bounds shall you be, kings,
To these two Princes, if you marrie them:
This Union shall do more then batterie can:
To our fast closed gates: for at this match,
With swifter spleene then powder can enforce
The mouth of passage shall we fling wide open,
And giue you entrance: but without this match,
The sea enraged is not halfe so deafe,
Lyons more confident, Mountaines and rockes
More free from motion, no nor death himselte
In mortall furie halfe so peremptorie,
As we to keepe this Citie.

Bast. Heeres a flay,
That shakes the rotten carkasse of old death
Out of his ragges. Here's a large mouth indeede,
That spitte forth death, and mountaines, rockes, and seas,
Talkes as familiarly of roaring Lyons,
As maids of thirteene do of puppi-dogges,
What Cannonere begot this lustie blood,
He speakes plaine Cannon fire, and smoake, and bounce,
He giues the bastinado with his tongue:
Our eares are cudgell'd, not a word of his
But buffers better then a fist of France:
Zounds, I was neuer so berump't with words,
Since I first cal'd my brothers father Dad.

Old Qu. Son, list to this conjunction, make this match
Giue with our Neece a dowrie large enough,
For by this knot, thou shalt so surely tye
Thy now vnfur'd assurance to the Crowne,
That yon greene boy shall haue no Sunne to ripe
The bloome that promiseth a mightie fruite:
I see a yeelding in the lookes of France:
Marke how they whisper, vrg'e them while their soules
Are capeable of this ambition,
Least zeale now melted by the windie breath
Of soft petitions, pittie and remorse,
Coole and congeale againe to what it was.

Hub. Why answer not the double Maiesties
This friendly treatie of our threatned Towne?
Fra. Speake England first, that hath bin forward first
To speake vnto this Citie: what say you?

John. If that the Dolphin there thy Princely sonne,
Can in this booke of beautie read, I loue:
Her Dowrie shall weigh equall with a Queene:
For Angiers, and faire Toraine Maine, Poytiers,
And all that we vpon this side the Sea,
(Except this Citie now by vs besiedg'd)
Shall gild her bridall bed and make her rich

In titles, honors, and promotions,
As she in beautie, education, blood,
Holdes hand with any Princeesse of the world.

Fra. What saist thou boy? looke in the Ladies face,
Dol. I do my Lord, and in her eie I find
A wonder, or a wondrous miracle,
The shadow of my selfe form'd in her eye,
Which being but the shadow of your sonne,
Becomes a sonne and makes your sonne a shadow:
I do protest I neuer lou'd my selfe
Till now, infixed I beheld my selfe,
Drawne in the flattering table of her eie.

Bast. Drawne in the flattering table of her eie,
Hang'd in the frowning wrinkle of her brow,
And quarrell'd in her heart, hee doth espie
Himselfe loues traytor, this is pittie now;
That hang'd, and drawne, and quarter'd there should be
In such a loue, so vile a Loue as hee.

Blan. My vinkles will in this respect is mine,
If hee see ought in you that makes him like,
That any thing hee see's which moues his liking,
I can with ease translate it to my will:
Or if you will, to speake more properly,
I will enforce it easlie to my loue.

Further I will not flatter you, my Lord,
That all I see in you is worthie loue,
Then this, that nothing do I see in you,
Though churlish thoughts themselves should bee your Iudge.

That I can finde, should merit any hate,
John. What saie these yong-ones? What say you my Neece?

Blan. That she is bound in honor still to do
What you in wisdome still vouchsafe to say.

John. Speake then Prince Dolphin, can you loue this Ladie?

Dol. Nay aske me if I can refraine from loue,
For I doe loue her most vnfaiedly.

John. Then do I giue Volquessen, Toraine, Maine,
Poytiers, and Aniou, these hue Provinces
With her to thee, and this addition more,
Full thirty thousand Markes of English coyne:
Phillip of France, if thou be pleas'd withall,
Command thy sonne and daughter to ioine hands.

Fra. It likes vs well young Princes: close your hands
Aust. And your lippes too, for I am well assur'd,
That I did so when I was first assur'd.

Fra. Now Citizens of Angiers ope your gates,
Let in that amitie which you haue made,
For at Saint Maries Chappell presently,
The rights of marriage shall be solemniz'd:
Is not the Ladie Constance in this troope?
I know she is not for this match made vp,
Her presence would haue interrupted much.
Where is she and her sonne, tell me, who knowes?

Dol. She is sad and passionate at your highnes Tent.
Fra. And by my faith, this league that we haue made
Will giue her sadnesse very little cure:
Brother of England, how may we content
This widdow Lady? In her right we came,
Which we God knowes, haue turn'd another way,
To our owne vantage.

John. We will heale vp all,
For wee'l create yong Arthur Duke of Britaine,
And Earle of Richmond, and this rich faire Towne
